Well done!

Our IB Seniors after their TOK presentation.

TOK Exhibition

The Theory of Knowledge Exhibition that occurred on Tuesday, November 16th was a great success!

Our IB Seniors presented their TOK projects and explored the nature of knowledge through the lenses of the disciplines that are of interest to them.

Monserrat gave us an overview of the course followed by Cassie who explored the knowledge question of 'How do I know that my childhood has made me the person I am today?' through the lenses of the Arts.

Matthew investigated whether there was a universal way to communicate through the medium that is music. He brought different musical perspectives from the Western world, but also from Eastern music theories and from Africa.

Mimi examined the theme is 'Knowledge is power' through Human Sciences. Her knowledge question was 'Is the quest for knowledge the quest for power?' She observed the growth of her 19 month-old niece and established that each time the child acquired more knowledge, she, in turn, acquired more freedom, which was a great source of power for her.

Kamari explored the nature of technology as a tool and discussed how the same tool, the Internet, can be beneficial and harmful. Her question was 'How do I know that too much screen time is bad?'

Monserrat was back with a short journey through the past. Her knowledge question was 'How do we know that the justice system is fair and delivers justice?' To answer her question, she investigated four court cases: Plessy v. Ferguson (1896), Brown v. Board of Education (1955), Gideon v. Wainwright (1963), and Miranda v. Arizona (1966)

Jaiden closed the evening's presentation with an investigation of knowledge and the Arts. Her question was 'What role does doing something you love every day play in your mental wellbeing?' She discussed the artist Raya Bodnarchuk in the creation of this question and a fascinating visit at the Katzen Arts Center this summer.

Q&A Time

Our Seniors took questions from the audience after the Exhibition and let their light shine through with their authenticity, simplicity, and transparency.

They did our school very proud!

IB Music & IB Art

All of our IB Music and Art students displayed and presented their work in the school's lobby before the TOK Exhibition.

Here are some highlights of their work!
