The kids are back in school and it won't be long before they start getting report cards. One of the most common questions I'm asked by parents and educators is how to respond to bad grades.

The first thing to remember is that the child's report card is the child's... not ours. While it's easy to get down on ourselves when kids perform poorly, it's very important to our mental health and theirs to remember the following:

We can't learn for kids.

As educators and parents we can up the odds of high achievement by modeling responsibility, establishing a safe and calm environment, providing excellent instruction and demonstrating excitement for learning.

We can't control every action they take or decision they make.

Secondly, it's comforting to remember that some of the world's most successful people have struggled with grades. Albert Einstein, Henry Ford, Jim Fay and Dr. Foster Cline are some notable examples. What's most important is that our children develop good character, curiosity, and problem-solving skills.

Many highly successful people struggled with grades as children.

Thirdly, if we can consistently demonstrate empathy rather than anger or frustration, the odds of them overcoming their difficulties dramatically increase. Is empathy really that powerful? Yes indeed! In fact, a growing body of research is demonstrating that warmth (i.e., empathy) is strongly correlated with higher achievement and better behavior. (If you like reading research studies: Rivers, Mullis, Fortner & Mullis, 2012 and Silt, Hughes, Wu & Kwock, 2012.)

So... let's remember to respond with sincere love and concern:

Oh man. I bet these grades are really disappointing for you. Please let me know if there is anything I can do to help. The good news is that this doesn't change the way I feel about you.

Leadership Trait of the Week

October 16th – October 20th

"HONOR"

Esmeida Martinez

Honor - A Sense of What is Right, Just and True.

Esmeida Martinez. This delightful young lady always does what is right and noble. She is an attentive listener and always tries her hardest. She kindly helps straighten and tidy up the classroom without being asked, and she is always kind to her classmates. This young lady is a tremendous help to other ESOL students who do not know the English language very well. Esmeida knows just when to translate for the other students and to help them with the skills we are working on in class.

Flat Rock Middle School

Parent-Teacher Team Meeting

Thursday, October 26, 2017

6:00 p.m. – 8:00 p.m.

Come out and learn important information about your student's performance level in comparison to his/her peers. All parents will receive student's Lexile, Star Math, as well as other important data for student growth and achievement.

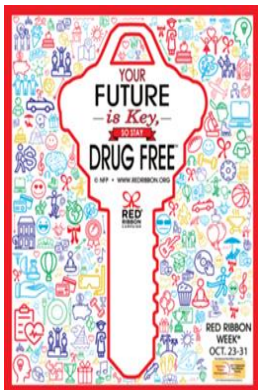

You don't want to miss it.

We hope to see you here!!!
